1 Sayaka: John, I came back from the school trip. It was great.
 John: That's good, Sayaka. Where did you go?

2 Jane: Kenta, is that boy over there your brother?
Kenta: Yes, Jane. He is ten years old.
Jane: He looks very happy.
Kenta: I'm sure he is happy. He is eating his favorite food.

3 Olivia: Hi, Takeru. You asked me questions about the school cafeteria in my school in America, right?

Takeru: Yes, Olivia.

Olivia: I found this information on the website of my school. It shows popular foods in the cafeteria of my school. 100 students chose one food they liked the most.

Takeru: That sounds interesting. Oh, more than half of the students chose pizza.

Olivia: That's right. Hamburger was popular, too.

Takeru: Right. 24 percent of the students chose it.

Olivia: I can't believe sandwich was in third place. It was my favorite food.

Welcome to our zoo. This is an announcement about today's events. The first event is the zoo tour. It will start at 11 o'clock. Our staff will guide you around the zoo. It's a good chance to learn about animals which you may not know. If you want to join the tour, please come to the information center by 10:50. The tour takes 45 minutes. We will have the tour even if it rains. Next, the turtle event will start at 2 o'clock in the afternoon. Our staff will take our big turtle for a walk. The turtle will walk from its cage to the main gate. Please do not touch the turtle during the turtle event. We can't tell how long the walk will take because we don't know how fast or slowly the turtle will walk today. The turtle event will be canceled if it rains. Thank you.

Question 1: What time will the zoo tour end?

Question 2: Which is true about this announcement?

- Mika: Hello, Mr. Brown. Can I start the interview for our school newspaper?
- Mr. Brown: Sure, Mika.
- Mika: Thank you. I heard you first came to Japan five years ago. How did you become interested in Japan?
- Mr. Brown: Well, I first became interested in Japan thanks to my sister. She was a big fan of Japanese anime and she told me many things that she learned about Japan through anime. The things she told me sounded very interesting.
- Mika: I see.
- Mr. Brown: At that time, I was a university student in Canada. During the summer vacation, I first traveled to Japan with my friend.
- Mika: How did you feel about Japan?
- Mr. Brown: Many things seemed different from Canada. But it was a short trip and I couldn't learn enough about Japan.
- Mika: So, you came back to Japan as an English teacher, right?
- Mr. Brown: Yes. Now I have an amazing life here in Japan. Teaching English to students is a great job. On weekends, I learn how to cook Japanese dishes from my neighbors. After that, together, we eat the dishes we cooked. That's the moment I enjoy the most in Japan.

Question 1: Who was a big fan of Japanese anime?

Question 2: What does Mr. Brown enjoy the most in Japan?

- Kana: What are you reading, Mike?
- Mike: Hi, Kana. I'm reading a news report about one kind of penguin.
- Kana: Oh, what does it say?
- Mike: According to some scientists, the penguins seem to sleep in a unique way. Instead of continuing to sleep for several hours, they sleep for only about four seconds. They have that type of sleep more than 10,000 times in a day. So, if we add together all the sleeping time they have in a day, they have about 11 hours of sleep in a day.
- Kana: That's interesting. But why do the penguins sleep in such a way?
- Mike: The scientists think the penguins sleep in this way when they need to protect their eggs or babies. They have to be careful about dangerous animals all the time. If they sleep for a long time, they can't protect their eggs or babies.
- Kana: I see. But can the penguins actually rest by sleeping in that way?
- Mike: The scientists are not sure about that yet.
- Kana: OK. I guess the penguins sleep in that way to survive in difficult situations.
- Mike: I think so, too.
