Ballistic Missiles, Airstrikes and other Military Attacks

If a warning comes from the J-ALERT system

When Outside

Avoid any blast waves or debris

TAKE COVER

Take cover in a nearby building (a sturdy one if possible) or underground

GET DOWN

If there are no buildings around, take cover behind something or lie flat on the ground, and protect your head

When Inside

Avoid things that could break from blast waves like window glass, etc.

STAY AWAY

Stay away from windows or move into a windowless room.

J-ALERT (A National Instant Warning System)

J-Alert is the early warning system designed to quickly alert the public of emergency threats such as ballistic missiles, earthquakes, and tsunami from the national government. It sends alerts through mobile phones and each municipality's community wireless system.

If there are evacuation instructions

In situations such as a land invasion, where there is a relatively long period of time before the danger occurs, and a more widespread evacuation becomes necessary, follow the instructions of the authorities and evacuate accordingly.

Instructions from the national government

The national government issues alerts and gives evacuation information to prefectural governors to protect people's lives and property from military attacks.

Instructions from the Osaka Prefectural Government

In response to the national government's instructions, Osaka Prefecture gives alerts and evacuation instructions.

Evacuation guidance by municipalities

Information is provided through TV and radio broadcasts or a municipality's community wireless system. Evacuate following the instructions.
